Castiglione, February 15.

THE Grand Prior of France continues here. The Enemy's Army is perpetually in Motion. The Count de Leiningen has caus'd their heavy Baggage to be loaded and unloaded several Times; he has now caus'd them to be loaded agen. We cannot gues at his Design, but are prepar'd to make head against him.

From the Camp before Verue, Feb. 16. The bad Weather incommodes us extremely. We are actually employ'd in making bellish Machines, which will be sent down the Po to break the Enemy's Bridge of Communication; for as long as it remains intire the Siege of Verue will be difficult.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated March 12.
Milan, Feb. 28. The last Advices we receiv'd relating to Verue, told us, that the new Battery of 24 Pieces of heavy Cannon rais'd against the Fort that covers the Bridge of Communication, would be ready to fire in a day or two; and 'twas hop'd wold do great Execution: That the Duke of Vendome talks frequently of making a general Assault, but that he still defers it; as well because of the Danger and Hazard he foresees in the Attempt, as because of the weak Condition of his Army. A Report is spread, that a considerable Body of the French is beaten by the Piemontois in the Valley of Aoste, but we must have a more certain Account before we give Credit to it. A Sum of 200000 Pistoles is remitted hither from France, for the Armies commanded by the Duke of Vendome and the Grand Prior his Brother, And we are put in Hopes the 30000 Recruits, and 3000 Horses for remounting the Cavalry, for both those Armies, will arrive at Genoa before the End of next Month. We learn from the Bressan, that the Imperialists are continually in Motion in that Province and on the Adige, to disguise their Designs from the French; that the Grand Prior of France is oblig'd to be always on Horseback, and to keep his Troops in a Readiness, to observe them; that the Count of Leiningen haviug caus'd all his Troops to move towards Salo, the French believ'd he would march to the Veroneze to joyn those Germans that are on the other side of the Adige; but that he has since remanded them into their former Posts.

From the Brussels Gaz. dated March 10.

From the King of Sweden's Head Quarters at Rawitz, Feb. 18. Some days ago a Polish Gentleman nam'd Gulokowski, with some Men who had serv'd under the Starost Smiegelski, came hither and declar'd they had abandon'd that Starost to serve King Stanislaus; but it being suspected they are rather come on some treacherous Design, and Information being given that some Polish Gentlemen have undertaken to seize by surprize and carry off King Stanislaus, this Gulokowski and those who came with him were put under Confinement, and have been very strictly examin'd, to discover whether they came with sincere Intentions to serve King Stanislaus, or to attempt something against him. That King has been here this Week, and has had several Conferences with his Swedish Majesty. The new Troop of 200 Guards du Corps which the King of Sweden has caus'd to be rais'd for King Stanislaus, is compleat, and their Mounting and Horses are given to them. A Party of Swedes have feiz'd in Silesia a certain Number of Packs of Wooll that were carrying in Waggon to Saxony, in which were found 200000 Crowns sent by the Czar of Muscovy to pay and Cloath the Troops he has in Lusatia. The King of Sweden has sent some Troops towards Cracow, and others towards Lithuania. The Diet which the Starost Oginski caus'd to be held at Roffienne in Samogitia, have declar'd they will stand by King Augustus: But 'tis believ'd that when the Swedish Army shall move towards that Province, the Nobility will take other Resolutions for their Preservation; having been constrain'd in this Assembly to do what the Starost Oginski pleas'd, to prevent the Execution of the Threats he made to ruine their Lands with his Troops, unless they would in all things comply with his Desires.

Berlin, Feb. 23. A Professor of Hamburg, nam'd Sebastian Etzardi, having publish'd at divers Times several Books, tending to disturb the Publick Peace, and particularly one Book very lately, under the Title of Pelagianismus Calvinianorum, in which he attacks as well the Ecclesiasticks of the Lutheran Perswasion as those of the Calvinistical, and also the Princes of both Perswasions; and endeavours as far as in him lies to incite Distrust and Animosity between the Protestants of both Sorts, to break the Harmony and Union that is between them them and is so necessary at this Juncture; against the Tenour of the Treaty of Osnabrug: His Prussian Majesty has caus'd a Proclamation to be issued, in which he most expressly forbids all the Ecclesiasticks in his Dominions, to write directly or indirectly against that Professor in Answer to any of his pestilent Books; and has likewise order'd that all printed Copies of his Writings, and especially that intituled Pelagianismus Calvinianorum, that shall be found in his Dominions, shall be siez'd and publickly burnt by the Hands of the common Executioner. To day some of them were burnt in the chief Market of this City.
